DEVELOPING BOLD COMPASSIONATE LEADERS

Measuring for sustainable outcomes, AIT anonymously surveyed parents and participants, three months to two years post camp.*

Participant Survey Statistics

- 96% of participants say they are more effective communicators since attending camp
- 94% of participants feel they have a greater positive influence on friends, family or both since attending camp
- 98% acknowledge that their tolerance with people outside of their circle, beliefs and comfort zone has increased since attending camp
- 94% agree that self-care and empathy has increased for themselves, others or both since attending camp
- 97% of participants say they are more willing to do something when witnessing unkind actions since attending camp

Parent Survey Statistics

Since attending camp, parents report a substantial improvement in the following developmental assets:

- Confidence
- Supporting/Helping Others
- Leadership
- Standing Up for Others
- Understanding
- Respect

Parent Comments

"Overall outstanding experience. My son is now taking on leadership roles and even applied and got accepted into ASB. This was not something he would have done before this program."

"My son had an incredible time. His level of confidence in his ability to lead has increased dramatically."

"Six months after camp, my son actively stopped an ugly social media attack that included several students and then shared his actions with me. This would not have happened prior to camp."

Participant Comments

"It was not only an amazing experience, but myself and others noticed a positive difference towards how I view the world. I am ever so grateful for what this camp has given to me and I hope it can impact others the way it has myself."

"Very inspiring. Taught me many things about how I should treat others and myself."

"This camp has opened my eyes to who I can be and how I can change the world."

"I didn't think camp would change anything, turns out it changes everything."

"My life has changed greatly and positively in every way."
